

Washington, DC is a capital city full of experiences and cultures. From its monuments and memorials, the story of our nation is told in riveting, grandiose fashion. The city's hotels are decked out in style and provide the utmost comfort for their guests. DC's dining scene thrives, sporting both traditional classics and can't-miss new restaurants opening week after week. An international presence is always felt, as the city serves as a melting pot for cultures from around the world (its dozens of embassies help). The performing arts are given spaces to shine throughout the District, while the sports teams bring out passionate fans for every game. And to top it off, navigating the city is a breeze, whether on foot or bicycle or via a highly efficient public transit system.

A canvas of colorful leaves, cozy vibes and marvelous weather make autumn one of DC's most alluring times to visit.

From foliage to festivals to waterfront views, there are endless amounts of things to see and do in fall. Shop for that must-have sweater, catch pro basketball and hockey thrills and book your table within Bon Appétit's restaurant city of the year. Explore free museums, and make sure you take in the sights along the National Mall, in full fall splendor.

Monuments and memorials, eclectic neighborhoods, true local flavor – Washington, DC is a place unlike any other. It's your home away from home with free museums and America's front yard. Plan your trip to the nation's capital by checking out all the things to do, places to eat and ways to stay. We look forward to seeing you in